One of Peter Auto's most loved and popular events, The Rallye des Princesses Richard Mille returns for another year on 3rd to 8th June 2023. Here's everything you need to know about this female-only event.

In the once male-dominated world of classic cars and motorsport, a welcome change is taking place. We now have world-renowned events like the W Series, Susie Wolff recently being appointed as Managing Director of the F1 Academy, and a host of female-only events spanning almost every discipline of motorsport.

Peter Auto is no exception to this, and their Rallye des Princesses Richard Mille is a firm favourite across the entire events calendar. It is a 100% women-only event, dedicated to those who are passionate lovers of collector cars and motor sport. Despite newer events shining the light on female car lovers, this regularity rally has been held for more than 20 years on the most beautiful roads in France and continues to unite exceptional women around the same exclusive passion.

The hundreds of glorious classic cars and their eager drivers will travel more than 1,500 km along the most beautiful roads in France, with some equally as special stops along the way to experience the finest food, wine, and entertainment.

Starting from the superb Place Vendôme in Paris, the crews will head for Megève, l'Alpe d'Huez, les Baux de Provence to finish their route along the Riviera in Nice, where they will undoubtedly be greeted with some fantastic food and drink to celebrate the occasion.

As the ultra-busy Peter Auto calendar continues to bring us the thrills and spills we love so much about classic car motorsport, the Rallye des Princesses Richard Mille is set to be one of the most memorable events of 2023. The best part? Registration is still open, so it's not too late to take part in this extraordinary adventure! Find out more about the event here.
